

Press release

We are excited to announce that Swiss LegalTech Association (SLTA) has partnered with the Swiss Bar Association (SBA) to expand its continued effort to educate and inform both the SLTA as well as SBA members about the latest LegalTech developments in the Swiss market.

Through this strategic partnership, SLTA and SBA will provide a platform for active discussions, latest information and further training opportunities to all its members. The agreement brings together two communities for a cross-disciplinary exchange and a chance to actively shape developments beyond each community.

"We are thrilled to partner with the SBA and are looking forward to a fruitful collaboration for the Swiss legal market," said Christoph Küng, Co-founder and President of SLTA. "We believe that the continued exchange between legal and tech is essential to raise awareness for current and future enabling opportunities in the daily practice of the Swiss law practitioner."

"SBA in accordance with its Digitalisation expert group welcomes this cooperation and the newly created biannual event Legalinnovation in close cooperation with SLTA. Conversely, the SLTA will provide thematic support for the lawyers' congress in the interim years," according to René Rall, Secretary General of the SBA. "A win-win situation that allows us to keep up to date with digital progress and to annually present SBA members with innovative as well as practical instruments."

About SLTA

The SLTA is a neutral, nonprofit association which provides a platform in order to foster the development legal technology in Switzerland as well as for a better understanding of the legal technology market.

About SBA

The SBA represents and defends the reputation, rights and interests of Swiss Barristers both domestically and abroad on behalf of the independence of the legal profession.
